An Editorial In Which The TALLAHASSEE DAILY DEMOCRAT Talks About

"The Sugar Swindle" and The Florida Producer

It is not denied that sugar can be produced in the Everglades more profitably than anywhere else in the country, or off shore for that matter. What Cleveland wants to do is to pass that fact by the Congress and that's what the federal government won't allow. — Fort Myers News-Press.

"In order to be perfectly fair to the Florida sugar industry which might be an even more important asset than the land it is in, we have studied carefully the entire proceedings of the senate committee on the sugar control bill, the debate in the Congress, the report and the pamphlets prepared by Clarence R. Pitting and others on this subject. Our conclusion is that the Everglades sugar interests have no intention whatever of passing on to the consumer the lower cost of production in Florida and that what is sought is the full benefit of governmental interference with business which can be produced.

We should like to think otherwise. A vast sugar industry in the Everglades would be profitable to the owners and of great benefit to employees and local and state-wide business. It is not a matter of whether they can outguess the weather and its antics.

A survey made this week shows that the great deal of the soil is entirely too dry to plow satisfactorily. The soil in some places is so dry in fact when the plow turns it, instead of the plow turning over and covering soil, it merely crumbles and leaves the soil exposed. A neat and simple way of plowing can't be done under these conditions.

"No matter what the majority of farmers decide to do, we'll grow that before the end of September a goodly amount of acreage will be planted. And those who bring through the sugar cane successfully will, in all probability, receive remuneration slightly above the average for their efforts."

WOMEN IN POLITICS

Senator Hattie Caraway's return to the United States Senate from Arkansas brings to mind the fact that there should be more women taking part in politics in this day. We honestly believe that more women in politics would tend to end some of the corruptions and petty thievery abundant in state and national affairs.

Some will argue that woman's place is in the home. We believe in a certain extent that this is correct. However, when men can't do the job properly we believe that women should be called in to help and in cases where that some evils are corrected. Certainly, they couldn't do worse than have some of our political bigwigs.

We may be stepping way out on a limb, but here and now we are predicting that in the near future more women will seek more offices, both state and national. And, along with that we will predict that when they do seek and attain these offices that they will do an excellent job during their tenure of office.

In there any good female who is intelligent and capable woman should not sit in the governor's chair. Tallahassee. Can you think of any reason why a woman couldn't tender an intelligent opinion in the legislature as to the feasibility of a proposed law? In these and many other places the women of the state and nation can serve and serve efficiently if they will only change their order of things and take an active part in governmental affairs.

GEORGIA POLITICS

President Roosevelt delivered a speech in Barnstable, Ga., last week in which he said that Senator George of the Democratic party. The president has written another chapter in national politics. Comment is brought to the nation has been unfavorable insofar as it relates to the tactics used by the nation's chief in attempting to hand-pick members of the next senate.

In the Georgia battle, where the senate is September 15, Senator George, former Governor of Georgia, and U. S. District Attorney Lawrence Camp, all candidates for the senate, are in a three-cornered fight. The president made no words in his Barnstable speech and came out full-bodied and asked that the voters of Georgia defeat Senator George, an able man with a brilliant record.

This week in Waycross, Ga., in his first speech since the signing of the president fell upon his ears in Barnstable, Senator George answered the chief executive in no uncertain words. His answer:

of special privileges. In order to spread the benefits equally among them to compensate for discrepancies in cost and should attempt to compensate in some manner the victims of the vicious system.

The first position is that of the traditional democratic party. The second position is that of the Everglades sugar industry and other beneficiaries of special privilege. The third position is that of the new deal.

The sugar control law is a typical new deal measure. It leaves the barriers to trade intact, thus it leaves the sugar grower at the mercy of the market and the mass production industries which are clamoring for wider markets to seek equity or justice from such a system is little short of preposterous. The only equity that can be done is to restore the balance of the market.

Permit the efficient farmers of the south and the efficient industries of the north to enter into new markets, trading their produce for low cost specialties of the world. It is clear enough that the sugar cane can be extracted from the stifled trade of this nation in sufficient quantities to compensate the victims with better payments, subsidies, relief, etc. does.

The position of the Everglades sugar industry is typical of the position of the sugar industry. What is sought is the full benefits of special privilege at a cost to the consumer in the form of higher prices. The United States of $300 to $400 million a year and to the producers of industrial and agricultural goods.

Enough, if the Everglades sugar industry can secure adequate production to hold the price of sugar to 5 or 6 cents and can produce unlimited quantities at little more than 2 cents, there is big money in it. And there should be some advantage to Florida to balance off against the vastly greater disadvantages of stifled southern and foreign trade upon becoming dependent for markets for our citrus, truck, cotton, tobacco, hogs, forest products, minerals and tourist accommodations. In short, the Everglades industry would like to penalize and regulate everyone else to their own profit protection for its own product but not penalties.

The traditional policy of the democratic party is in an era in which the formal republic party stands discredited while its policies are preserved and nurtured by "democratic" administration with the element and assistance of southern "democratic" protectionists. — Tallahassee Daily Democrat.

Don Lochner, president of the Florida State Fruit Association, guest speaker at the Tampa-Advising club this week urged the use of country weeklies to merchants in metropolitan areas as the most effective means of reaching prospects in their trade territory.

There are three positions on the sugar question and its control. In there any good female who is intelligent and capable woman should not sit in the governor's chair. Tallahassee. ## TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

Daytona Beach: A lot has been written about a winter visitor but very little attention has been paid to the ever increasing number of people who come to Florida in the summer.

For many, many years Florida has been the playground of the winter tourists because our state was a "winter playground" and the bulk of our tourists came here during the winter months.

The first position is that of the traditional democratic party. The second position is that of the Everglades sugar industry and other beneficiaries of special privilege. The third position is that of the new deal.

Ginger Rogers And Doug Fairbanks, Jr. In "Having Wonderful Time"

Telling a rosy story of romance at a vacation camp.

Richard "Red" Skelton, radio and vaudeville sensation, makes his screen debut as the camp's wisecracking wisent director.

In addition to these, two well-known players as Lucille Ball, Lee Bowman, Donald Meade, Doris Kent, Marian Brien, Charles H. Wilson, Ida Volman, Eve Arden, Grady Sutton, Leona Roberts, Wesley Barry, Russell Gleason, Gaylord Pennington, Shamus Burke, Juanita Quigley, Frances Gifford and Alan Lane have prominent roles in the film.

Most of the pictures have filmed at Bartlett Lake, in the San Bernardino mountains, where an entire summer camp was constructed with a huge recreation hall and scores of cottages dotted around the borders of the lake to provide an authentic setting for the offering.

Alfred Sant directed the Pandoro S. Berman production, and Arthur Koher, the author of the original Broadway hit, wrote the screen play.

"You and Me" with George Raft and Sylvia Sydney, will be the week end attraction at the Prince theatre in Pahokee.

The clank of armour and twang of the ancient cross-bow will be heard in Tampa next February when several hundred Spanish and Portuguese soldiers of old Spain, representing the army of De Soto, tramp city streets and take part in the mighty spectacle planned in celebration of the 400th anniversary of the famed explorer at the Pan American 150th De Soto Exposition.

Bright youngsters participating in a Prof. Clegg program at Daytona Beach, confronted with the question "Who always opens his radio talk with the salutation 'My Friends'?"—gave the following answers: "Governor Fred P. Cone," "Fred Allen," "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Supporting the two principals is a brilliant cast, and one of the most magnificent of recent pictures. Peggy Conklin, noted stage and screen favorite, has the role of Miss Rogers' girl friend at the camp, and Travel bureaus, transportation companies, hotels and other organizations were contacted and supplied literature and information concerning Daytona Beach's advantages as a summer resort. Offices were set up in Atlanta, New York and other cities where folks could drop in and secure information concerning hotel and transportation rates, living costs, and other first hand data.

As a result, thousands of summer visitors were attracted from all southern states, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina all send thousands of folks to Daytona Beach every summer and their number is increasing each season.

During the past two weeks I've even seen an opportunity to meet and talk with a lot of these people. I find them all amazed at the marvelous summer climate Florida has to offer. They're delighted with the cool nights, absence from mosquitoes and other pests.

Those experiencing their first Florida Summer here tell how they were lured into coming and imagined that the heat would be terrible but they were tempted to try it by friends who had been down here at this time of year and returned with glowing reports. Now they are planning to come back themselves and bring others with them.

Florida truly has more to offer as a summer resort than many states that advertise themselves extensively as such. Our delightful coast cities on the Gulf of Mexico and Gulf are all justified in terming themselves "summer resorts" and should do so, going after their share of this business for the field hasn't been scratched and the campaign need not be limited to a few southern states but might well take in all the middle and all eastern states.

I have personally visited every state east of the Mississippi in the summer as well as many in the west and none have a summer climate that can compare with Florida's. Florida's climate, compared to the summers in most of those states, is something to talk about and I don't mean maybe. Folks up there go around in a wave of sure "HEAT" that settles down no you like a blanket and leaves you feeling like a blob of drawn butter, and the nights are just as bad as the days. About the only consolation they get is gossamer about how much worse off they are down in Florida for they still have the mid idea that because we enjoy a mild climate in the winter it must be abnormal hot in summer and they wonder how we ever stand it.

Our job is to get them down here one summer so they can get a load of our natural "air-conditioning." A sample of our fresh cool ocean breezes and cool nights. If they'll just try one summer in Florida, they'll be so amazed and delighted that it won't be long till we'll find our summer business as good as if not better than the winter season, and all we gotta do is TELL 'EM.

An emergency organization of Miami merchants is demanding a special session of the legislature to repeal the one half of one percent gross receipts tax, contending that unless this is done money will be forced to close their doors on July 1, due to inability to pay.

Consolidation of the Sarasota Herald and Sarasota Tribune, occurred last week when the Herald purchased the rival publication by David P. Lindsey, publisher of the Herald, becoming president of the new company. Both papers will continue publication under the same management.

$2350.00 in WPA funds has been spent on the construction of school buildings. The amount according to state administrator R. J. Dill, includes both new buildings and repairs and covers 230 projects.

"Ladies Day" in police court is the latest innovation at the West Palm Beach City Hall. Judge Ed Lake set Tuesday mornings at 11 a. m. for the hearing of all cases of white women arrested for traffic violations.

Power Rate Cut Is Announced By The Florida P. & L. Co.

Small Commercial Customers Will Benefit Under New Plan

Smaller commercial customers of the Lake Okechobee region will materially benefit from a rate reduction announced by H. L. Lapp, manager of Florida Power & Light company in the Glades area. He stated that "the reduction is being made in the territory served by the company, and the overall saving is estimated at more than $250,000. The new combination lighting and power rate replaces the present combination rate schedule, No. 62 and gives average reduction of 11% to small commercial combination customers and, like the one it replaces, is optional to small commercial customers now on open meter rates. This reduction is equal to more than one month's free service each year."

"The new combination rate not only reduces the flat charge but for the first time includes kilowatt hours in this charge, and the energy charge in the new rate runs from 4 to 20 per kilowatt hour. The rate applies to meter readings on and after September 1, 1938, which means that many customers taking the rate are now receiving its benefits."

"The new rate makes available lower cost electric service to the smaller commercial customer who uses service all year on a rate comparable to that of the larger commercial customers."

"It has always been the policy of Florida Power & Light company to make voluntary reduction whenever possible." Mr.

Lapp said. "A general reduction of more than $400,000 was given to this same class of commercial customers a year ago, and the company is glad to be able to give of assistance to the business interests of the state in further reducing its small commercial rate at this time."

Mr. Lapp stated that "a representative of the company will call on the applicable customers as early as possible to explain the benefits of the new rates to them. This company has never increased its rates in spite of increased rates, and increased prices of commodities and other expenses required in its service, but on this contrary has progressively reduced its rates as rapidly as increased use of our facilities and operating economies permit, as evidenced by these reductions."

The further along the summer gets the more I get behind with my fishing. I don't want to admit it but I haven't caught a black bass big enough to enter in any of the many fishing contests this summer. There's something radically wrong and I'm going to interview some of the piscatorial artists in Belle Glade and Pahokee and find out where lies the cause for my hard luck. I've done about everything I know and still the big ones get away. P. R.

Two Elections In—
for which application has been made to the FWA for a grant. An agreement has been reached between town officials and the county school board for rental of the building as a high school structure, to be applied on purchase price.

Officials of the Town of Belle Glade, in a letter to all freeholders, point out that the only expense 'the town will be put to in the construction of the auditorium is that of holding the election, since the school board has agreed to lease the property at an annual amount sufficient to meet the bond payments. Copies of the proposed lease and agreement from the school board for the auditorium will be in the office of the Town Clerk in Belle Glade a sufficient time before the election that all who wish to see them may do so, town officials said this week.

At the special election to be held on September 20, freeholders also vote on the issuance of $28,000 in bonds for the procuring of additional equipment and machinery and the erection of extensions to the town's waterworks system. This is not a new bond issue. It was pointed out by town officials, but merely another check from the freeholders on the same amount that had been previously voted when the town was bonded for $76,000 for the waterworks. The federal government requested the Town of Belle Glade to destroy $28,000 worth of the bonds in the original issue and the validating the bonds previously elected will be for the purpose of checked by the freeholders.
